

Creation's freedom promises my own.

What could change if I trusted that love does not depend on preserving its former shape?